

Answer the questions:

- There is no weak entity, because all the tables have a primary key. An entity can only be a weak entity if it doesn't have a primary key.
- Data redundancy occurs when the same piece of data exists in multiple places. There is no data redundancy, because all entities have attributes and store different data.

